Necaise, Rutherford tell political objectives

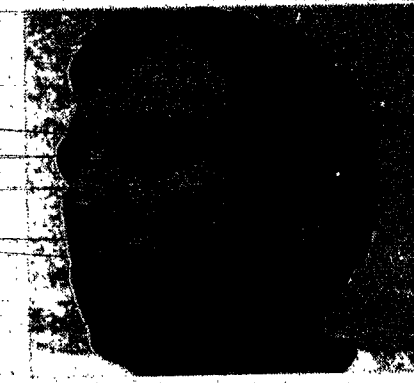

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
Two candidates for Hancock County Chancery Court clerk have been weeded-out in the first primary leaving Mike Necaise and John D. Rutherford to compete for the post in the second Democratic primary Aug. 28.
The winner will represent the Democratic party in the November election for Chancery clerk.
Thus far, no Republican nor independent candidates have qualified.
Some 8,859 electors voted for the four clerk candidates in the first primary. Rutherford received approximately 3,761 votes; Necaise 2,908; and John Taylor and Jerry Ladner combined claimed 2,290 votes.
Rutherford led Necaise by 953 votes in that primary.

However, the winner of the second primary will be the candidate who acquires enough of the 2,290 votes that went to Ladner and Taylor.
Both Necaise and Rutherford stress efficiency as goals to achieve if elected.
Rutherford, 59, of Bay St. Louis is the incumbent and a former Internal Revenue Service auditor.
Necaise, 30, also of Bay St. Louis, is an administrator in the county school system and a former basketball coach and teacher at Bay Senior High School.
In an interview Friday Rutherford and Necaise answered the following questions:

Randolph, Sills state positions

By RICH ADAMS
The Aug. 26 runoff election between incumbent Hancock County School Superintendent Terry Randolph and North Bay Elementary Principal Billy Sills will be the second time the two have faced each other in a head-to-head contest for that position.
Randolph, the winner in 1975, went into his first term in the office on a mere 126-vote lead.

But in 1975, neither candidate faced the awesome prospect once the election was over of a loss of accreditation due to overcrowded conditions and outdated facilities—the specific awaiting the Aug. 26 winner this year.
In separate interviews, each candidate formulated his own plans to

School board seeks band director

By Leslie Williams
Hancock County School District yesterday voted unanimously to hire one band director for both Charles B. Murphy and Gulfview Elementary schools.
"I understand the plight of parents on the lower end," Superintendent Terrell Randolph said, "they need a band director at those elementary schools."
Randolph made the comment during a discussion about a parent who wanted her child to leave a school in the southern part of the county and attend another school where a band program was offered.

"If they need a band director at Murphy and Gulfview let's give them one," Board Member Oris Ladner said.

Oris Ladner moved for the creation of the position which was seconded by Board Member Louie Ladner.

STILL TIME TO GARDEN

Just because your summer garden is past its prime is no reason to give up on fresh vegetables this year. Some of the best gardening of the year can be done in the fall. Crops you can enjoy in September, October and November include, lettuce, radishes, mustard, turnips, tomatoes, peppers and broccoli. Extension publication 1091, "Vegetable Garden," lists the recommended vegetables and planting dates for fall gardens in Mississippi. It's available on request at the county Extension Office.

FALL-SEEDED FORAGES

It's time to plan your fall-seeded forage crops. Farmers in north Mississippi can seed winter annual grasses as early as August 15. In extreme south Mississippi, it's best to wait until September.

For ryegrass alone, use 40 pounds of seed per acre. If you want ryegrass plus a small grain, seed 30 pounds of ryegrass and 90 pounds of small grain per acre.

If a winter annual legume is desired, use 15 to 20 pounds of crimson clover or 10 pounds of arrowleaf clover per acre. Do not mix the legumes with fertilizer; fertilizer can damage the inoculant and seed distribution is often unsatisfactory.

PASTURE WEED CONTROL

Weeds in summer perennial pastures often contribute much or more to low forage production than any other factor. These pests often require more nutrients, light and water than do forage plants.

Broadleaf weeds cause the most problems. Particularly troublesome are horsecherry, tall dogfennel (cypressweed), smartweed, bitterweed and pigweed. These weeds often require chemical control with a herbicide containing dicamba (Banvel). A mixture containing one pound of dicamba and three pounds of 2,4-D per gallon will control most problem broadleaf weeds when applied at the rate of one to two pints per acre.

FALL GARDENS

If you've started a late tomato crop, you need to spray for early blight. This is the same disease that robbed many home gardeners of their spring tomato crops, and it will reduce fall crops unless controlled. For control, make weekly applications of a fungicide such as Maneb or Chlorothalonil. Make the first application when the plants are 7 to 10 inches tall and continue treatment every 7 days until frost.

Be sure to start the treatment early, because early blight is much more difficult to control once established. Maneb will also control other fall garden diseases,

WIND BREAKERS

If the foundation around the house is open, or has a space where wind can get in, enclose it. This can be done by "banking." Fill old sacks with dirt, leaves or whatever is available and stuff them around the edge of the house to fill the space between the sill and the ground, suggests Frances Fortenberry, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service housing and equipment specialist.

USZE SMALL OVENS

When baking small amounts of food, use a small portable oven to consume less energy. Small ovens use about one-half kilowatt per hour, range ovens use two to three times that amount. One study shows that a portable oven uses 15 percent less energy than a regular oven, says Frances Fortenberry, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service housing and equipment specialist.

MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL —
THE STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Mississippians are concerned about their county governments.

This is the conclusion of the Mississippi Economic Council based on public response to MEC's newly published model plan for county government in Mississippi.

The study — which took more than nine months to complete — incorporates at least 20 years' work in county government by MEC, explained Council President Benton Cain of Jackson.

"It is apparent to us that the citizens of Mississippi are serious about their county governments," said Cain. The study has prompted questions, requests for information, and even meetings of citizen groups all for the purpose of understanding county government and becoming familiar with the recommendations of the MEC for county government in the twenty-first century.

The Council study, led by a special committee chaired by Yazoo City industrialist Gene Triggs, found Mississippi county government, in its present form, "incapable of meeting the needs of Mississippi and Mississippians for today and tomorrow."

Problems with today's county government structure, said Triggs, result from "traditions, habits, and even constitutional and statutory barriers" which bind these local governments to the past century.

The MEC study calls for revision which would provide clearer lines of authority and accountability for county officials. It also calls for separation of the legislative and administrative functions of county government.

Under the proposal, the traditional county board of supervisors — elected from the five districts within a county — would be left intact, but a county administrative officer would be required in every county.

Further, the study calls for removal of several traditional county offices from the ballot, with the board of supervisors to appoint county officers as the need arise. Qualifications would be established for these appointive positions, including the sheriff, tax assessor-collector, a clerk of the courts, and a clerk of the board.

"Weaknesses in county government today result from confused and diffused authority and accountability," Triggs emphasized. "Under the Council plan, the confusion would be eliminated. Citizens of a county would be able to place accountability with each elected and appointed official."

The MEC study, "County Government in Mississippi — A Model Plan for the Twenty-First Century," is available from the Council office in Jackson. The report has been published in book form and is available at $3 per copy.

Editorial

The opening day sneaks up on us

Summer 1979 is almost a thing of the past, with school bells ringing in just a few days.

Our children will again be walking, riding bicycles, in autos and buses going back and forth to school from home.

More traffic will be on our streets in the mornings and afternoons. We ask each of you to be extremely careful in driving.

Parents themselves have an obligation of trying to teach their children how to properly ride a bicycle and walk on the streets back and forth to school.

It is a violation of a state law for us to pass a School Bus when they are stopped and picking up or dropping off students. The reason for it being a State law is simple, children dart in every direction without thinking.

It would be wise for you to try and leave a little earlier for your job or transporting your children to school, as we have been informed there will be strict enforcement of the law prohibiting the passing of stopped school buses.

We realize that many of us adults wish we were still in school as youngsters, but there is no way we can turn back Father Time.

We can help our children enjoy their years in school by trying to teach them and having them reach school and home safely each day.

Please drive carefully, now that school is open.

Weatherwise it may not seem to be the time for football, but Friday Aug. 31 is kick-off time for Hancock North Central and Pass Christian at the Pirate Stadium.

There was a lot of good support for our area teams last season and we hope the enthusiasm will carryover to the 1979 season. See you at the game, Friday a week from now.

How many times have you heard the old statement about 'my vote won't count'.

If you still feel you would like to say that, talk to either Bob Joiner or W.H. (Shag) Pyron, Highway Commissioner candidates who battled in the Democratic primary.

There were more than a quarter million votes cast in the race and at the last report we received, Joiner had a five-vote margin. The last count showed Joiner 133,857 to Pyron's 133,852.

Some think the race is not settled as yet. So remember your vote does count, if you vote.

We would like to commend Thomas Gause, Federal Liaison Officer for Hancock County after Hurricane Camille, for his contribution to our issue of August 16.

We have heard many favorable comments on how well documented his story was with straight facts.

With the help of people like Mr. Gause, we the victims of Camille are able to be in the positions we are in today, the envy of every community in the nation.

If you haven't visited Brother Peter's Memorial Gym for the U.S. Championship Senior Powerlift meet, you are really missing an important, nationally significant sports event.

The heavyweight division is scheduled for today. Nationwide coverage of the event by NBC Television will show you how prestigious the event really is, and just think, right here in Bay St. Louis.

Again congratulations to Brother Bennett, S.C. St. Stanislaus powerlift coach. We know you had a lot to do with getting the national event in Bay St. Louis.

We know that Bay St. Louis native Joseph (Doc) Rhodes, the 1977 world champion powerlifter in his class will not be competing because of a back injury, but we know he will be on hand to witness the event.

We wish Doc a speedy recovery, for we know he has put Bay St. Louis on the map throughout the world in weightlifting circles.

Once again we appeal to the public on behalf of our law enforcement officers. If you see anything suspicious going on in your neighborhoods, give the police a call.

The police are the best people to call for help in these times. We realize several groups have been arrested by local police.

A telephone tap from you could help them in the future. We are not asking you to do anything illegal, but we are asking you to help us.

School's Started. . .

Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:
Your article in July concerning my plight in getting my roof repaired and the resulting damages to my home through contractor's negligence elicited a heart-warming response from the community.

I would like to especially give recognition to the congregation of the Lutheran Church of the Pines in Waveland, particularly Ms. Mildred Paulina.

David Cohan of Bay St. Louis' also was very helpful, as well as the Farmers Home Administration, Bay St. Louis Police Department, Michael Watkins and his family, A. B. Becker, and many others.

Rabid bat discovery no cause for alarm, say health officers

Disease control experts at the Mississippi State Board of Health emphasize no cause for alarm in the discovery of a bat with rabies in Carthage last week.

"No rabies has been detected in land animals in Mississippi in more than 20 years," said Dr. Durward Blakey, chief of the Bureau of Disease Control. "Rabies is detected in all types of bats; it is probable that rabies is a normal type infection for bats and may serve as a kind of 'population control' disease because bats carry the virus for a long time in seemingly healthy condition."

State Board of Health clinical laboratories director Dr. B.J. Phillips said the bat submitted August 3 from Leake County and found to be rabid is only the third for this year.

Neither bat identified as rabid is known to have bitten any person or domestic animal, health authorities emphasize. "There's no point in examining bats to see if they're rabid unless they've bitten someone," Dr. Blakey stressed. "Bats are flying mammals, not birds, which transmit rabies through direct mucous membrane contact, through biting."

"People not bitten by a bat are at no more risk of rabies than people not bitten by another animal with rabies," he said. "But any bite by a bat has to be considered as a bite by a rabid animal. We treat bat bites as the most dangerous animal exposure."

Dr. Blakey warned against trying to catch bats for laboratory inspection.

"Avoid handling bats under all circumstances," he emphasized. "Normally they stay away from human beings, but whenever you see one, consider it rabid and extremely dangerous."

If a bat is known to have bitten a person, it should be captured, dead or alive. Care must be taken to avoid further injury or direct contact with it.

The victim should immediately call his physician or health officer and have the bat examined for rabies at the State Board of Health Laboratory.

"We monitor wild and domestic animals and check for rabies in the lab," Dr. Blakey said. "We need to know at the first moment rabies might occur."

Rabies, a virus which attacks the brain and results in bizarre behavior, choking, fever, vomiting, and finally death, is present but at a low level, the physician said. "Mississippi communities have had a good domestic animals rabies vaccination program," he commented. "The State Board of Health is charged under the Rabies Control Law with specifying a vaccine to be used, establishing a supply depot, and supplying tags and certificates for more than 50,000 vaccinations a year."

"Treatment for rabies is severe and expensive and not without risk, though," he emphasized. "Before beginning treatment, we need to determine if a person has been bitten and if the animal has rabies."

"But don't go bat-hunting," he warned. "For bats, free-flying or fallen, to have rabies is usual. We need to be aware of that but not to panic."

Additional information on bats with rabies is available by contacting the county health department.

Missionary conference scheduled

Leadership training conferences are planned for Aug. 27 and 28 at First Baptist Church, Hattiesburg, for every level of Mississippi Woman's Missionary Union. Known as WMU to Baptists, this is the missions education organization in Mississippi's more than 1,800 Southern churches.

The purpose of the meetings is to provide training for both the experienced and inexperienced leaders in WMU. Miss Marjean Patterson, executive director of Mississippi WMU, and her staff of state consultants, Miss Ethel McKeithen, Miss Marilyn Hopkins, Miss Becky Briscoe, and Miss Waudine Storey, will be leading conferences.

Other conference leaders are women who have learned both by being active in places of leadership in their own church WMU organizations and by attending WMU Conference either at Gloria Baptist Conference Center, New Mexico, or Ridgecrest Baptist Conference Center, North Carolina, during the time of preparation for leading WMU conferences in Mississippi.

Plans for the denominational theme "Bold Mission Thrust" and for the WMU theme "Life-Changing Commitments" for 1979-80 will be presented as part of the training program.

Time for the Aug. 27 meeting is 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Time for the Aug. 28 meeting is 9:45 a.m. to 2 p.m. Registration cost is $1.25. Those attending the day meeting will need to bring a sack lunch. Cold drinks will be available.

alleviate problems plaguing county schools:

Q: If the Aug. 28 bond issue fails, will another bond issue be placed before the public despite two failures to pass the proposal? And if the issue does not pass, will 16th Section Lease money be used for construction?

RANDOLPH: "We will take $411,000 in 16th Section Lease money to construct classrooms on all three campuses (if the bond issue fails.) Regardless of who is elected to the position of superintendent, a bond issue is inevitable for classroom construction to meet necessary requirements for accreditation and to meet needs brought on by a tremendous and continuing increase in enrollment in the county schools."

"During the past two years, enrollment has increased by 300 students, generating a need for 15 additional classrooms and teachers, 5 additional buses, and extra supplies such as 300 desks and lockers."

SILLS: "I will be very honest—the bond issue is not the issue in this election. The real issue is the need of facilities and determining where these facilities could best fit the needs of the community."

"If another bond issue is necessary, this is what I would like to do—invite parents, teachers, principals, and former superintendents, to get their views on what we should do."

"All of these people are important in forming a good, strong system."

Q: If the Aug. 28 bond issue should fail, will the building plan for new schools be revised, as reports indicate the northern section of the county is dissatisfied with the present plan?

RANDOLPH: "The bond issue being presented to the people Aug. 28 is the best plan yet submitted. This plan was adopted by the school board with the help and guidance of a committee that represented each community in the county."

"At the last community meeting of almost 75 to 100 school patrons, mostly from the northern end of the county, they almost unanimously agreed to accept the present plan."

SILLS: Again, I believe we should involve all teachers, patrons, principals, and former superintendents. Also we should bring in consultants from the State Department of Education or the University of Southern Mississippi who are open minded and look at the situation."

"While they are here, we could also study the curriculum at the schools and update the courses."

Q: If the current bond issue should fail, will the school system voluntarily omit athletics from the program and use that money to build classrooms?

RANDOLPH: "If the bond issue does not pass, accreditation of the schools will be in jeopardy as cited in State Department of Education correspondence. This could result in athletic programs being eliminated if such loss occurs."

"I don't think the extra funds from athletics would add much to the system. The school district expended only $11,800 for the athletic program at all schools in 1978-1979."

SILLS: "No, I do not think that is necessary. There is no need to cut out athletics."

Q: Will the frequency and odd hours of school board meetings, which have been criticized by teachers and patrons, be changed?

RANDOLPH: "Yes. The faculty, staff, and public will be notified at least 24 hours prior to the commencement of any school board meeting."

"The time of meetings and school board minutes of previous meetings will be posted in the teacher's lounge and on school bulletin boards."

"My desire is to have school board meetings in the various communities in the system at least one time a month with public participation. For instance, our regular school board meeting will be conducted in the school board office and recess or special meetings will be held at Crane Creek, Leetown, Kila, Lakeshire, etc."

SILLS: "I would like to go back to what I said four years ago. I want good public relations to let the community know what is going on in the school system."

"The public should be informed on what is going on...they have the right to know. I have nothing to hide."

Q: A school patron recently criticized the school system for not participating in ACT test workshops, stating Hancock North-Central ACT scores were somewhat below state average. Will the school system participate in ACT workshops in an attempt to raise the scores?

RANDOLPH: "ACT scores at Hancock North-Central were the highest in the state last year. Certainly, ACT workshops are available to those schools who take the test and we will try to become more involved with ACT workshops in the future."

Q: Will the school system participate in ACT workshops in an attempt to raise the scores?

should do what is best for the education of the students. That is what we are here for, and that is the name of the game."

Q: In the first primary election this year, Mr. Randolph drew the majority in 10 precincts while Mr. Silles captured the majority in nine precincts. In Leetown, superintendent candidates J.D. Penton and James O'Hara were strong contenders with 80 votes between them.

Reports indicate one of these candidates, both principals in the county school system, has tendered his resignation.

Have either of these former candidates voiced support for either Mr. Randolph or Mr. Silles?

RANDOLPH: "I have not and will not exert any pressure upon either principal to support me for re-election. That is a decision which these two intellectuals will have to make for themselves."

"One of the principals offered to submit his written resignation within the past few days. After talking to the individual, I convinced him he will be an asset to the school district with his continued employment."

"He has a tremendous amount of ability and concern for children of this county. I feel certain, with his support, that we can build this system into one of the finest."

"My other former opponent has also offered his support and assistance to continued educational progress in the county and to help promote the bond issue which would create a new air conditioned elementary school at Hancock North Central and a new Junior and Senior High School complex on US-90."

"I would like to commend both gentlemen for putting the election behind them and concentrating on opening their particular schools. Both are a credit to the school system."

SILLS: "I can't speak for either of them. That is their decision. I have had some voters say they will support me, and others I have talked to asking their support."

"I have gone to the north and south ends of the county as time allows after work and on weekends."

Q: What measures will you take towards alleviating an alleged illiteracy problem at Hancock North Central? School Board Member Johnny Banks, at a meeting in June, said "The majority of students graduating cannot read."

RANDOLPH: "The whole nation is suffering from an illiteracy problem and that is primarily due to the social movement in the late 1950s and early 1960s."

"The only way to eliminate this problem is to initiate student reading programs in elementary schools, such as one adopted by this system in 1978, an individual tutorial reading program in which each child receives individual instruction on a one-to-one basis."

SILLS: "I believe we should go back to the basics. What is wrong with the three R's. We need to start with the basics in order to build a good foundation in the lower elementary grades and continue doing so in the junior and senior high schools."

"As for nationwide literacy tests being required prior to graduation, all I can say is what is good for one part of the country is not necessarily good for another part."

Q: Will the frequency and odd hours of school board meetings, which have been criticized by teachers and patrons, be changed?

In Holman homicide

Noted Gulfport trial lawyer to represent Catahoula farmer

By RICH ADAMS

Edgar Pete Moran, a Catahoula resident being held in connection with last week's shooting death of Coast Electric Employee Curtis (Chopper) Holman Jr., is to be represented by former district attorney Boyce Holleman of Gulfport.

Holleman said Thursday he has taken the case and will represent the 40-year-old Hancock County farmer and election commissioner.

Moran is being confined in an undisclosed jail without bond "for security reasons," according to Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner Jr.

Holleman's body was discovered on the floorboard of a Coast Electric field truck Tuesday by fellow employees. He had been shot once in the head.

Sheriff and Chief Deputy Sheriff Edgar Pete Moran, 40, was shot and killed by a gunman approximately 30 minutes after he left his body.

When he was shot, Holman was driving a white pickup truck. He was wearing a white shirt and dark pants.

Red Tide threat eases

Personnel from the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory made another flight over the offshore islands and adjacent waters of the Mississippi Sound off Hancock County Thursday to observe local red tide conditions.

The found evidence that the bloom of the alga Gonyaulax monilata, the red tide organism, was lessening and it may be starting to die off.

Harriet Perry, fishery biologist in charge of this investigation, said they planned to make a field inspection of Hancock County oyster reefs in western Mississippi Sound on Friday.

Also, they will be taking water samples and additional samples of the organism for quantitative analysis to determine the number of organisms present per cubic meter of water.

No fish were sighted floating in the water or washed up on the island beaches.

The Laboratory should be notified immediately of any fishkills in the area. Red Tide is the name given to the population explosion of the microscopic, one-celled plant known as Gonyaulax monilata.

Bay sales tax increase effective September 1st

By ELLIS CUEVAS

An additional half-cent sales tax will go into effect September 1, 1979 on retail sales in the City of Bay St. Louis.

The sales tax is to finance settlement of a judgement against the City of Bay St. Louis in a case brought by Jimmy Ray Warner, who was allegedly paralyzed in a diving accident from a municipal pier here in 1969.

The authority for the additional tax to be levied written into provisions of House Bill No. 1402 of the 1979 Mississippi Legislature.

The special levy is in addition to a five percent retail sales tax levied by the state and is to be reported on a special return on or before the 20th of each month by Bay St. Louis.

The order requesting the tax was signed by W.A. Burnes, director of the Revenue Department of Mississippi.

A ten year battle has been staged by Bay St. Louis in fighting the suit. Attorneys representing the city have exhausted every avenue in trying to reverse the decision.

replacement of department heads who do a poor job and replacement of the Agricultural and Industrial Board with a Board of Economic Development."

Winters explained: "I would like to see a university on the Gulf Coast, if one could be created without reducing the quality of education," Winters said.

He added there is a limit of resources available for such a venture.

"Yes, he reiterated, 'I would support a move for a university here if the money was available—it's a matter of dollars and cents.'"

Winters said he will secure investment capital in the state by having his proposed Board of Economic Development compete for those types of funds.

The candidate plans to accomplish his objective of equalizing educational opportunities by revising the present minimum foundation program in the state.

"Under the present foundation program, some districts support education at a rate of $600 per capita and others $1,200 per capita. This is inequitable, there is a disparity of 2 to 1 between the districts in terms of support to the district," Winters explains.

The candidate says he proposes revision of the formula without reducing the quality of education in the higher supporting districts.

"This task will be accomplished by a group of legislators and educators and a revised formula should go before the 1981 state legislature," Winters stated.

The Grenada County native also proposes a plan which will enable Mississippians to purchase homes at 2 percent below the conventional mortgage rate.

The average homeowner could save up to $100 per month on a house note.

This would be made possible by authorizing the state or localities to issue tax exempt revenue bonds to provide money to participating private lending institutions for these low-rate mortgages.

"This concept should particularly aid low-income Mississippians who work hard for a living and deserve a home," he said.

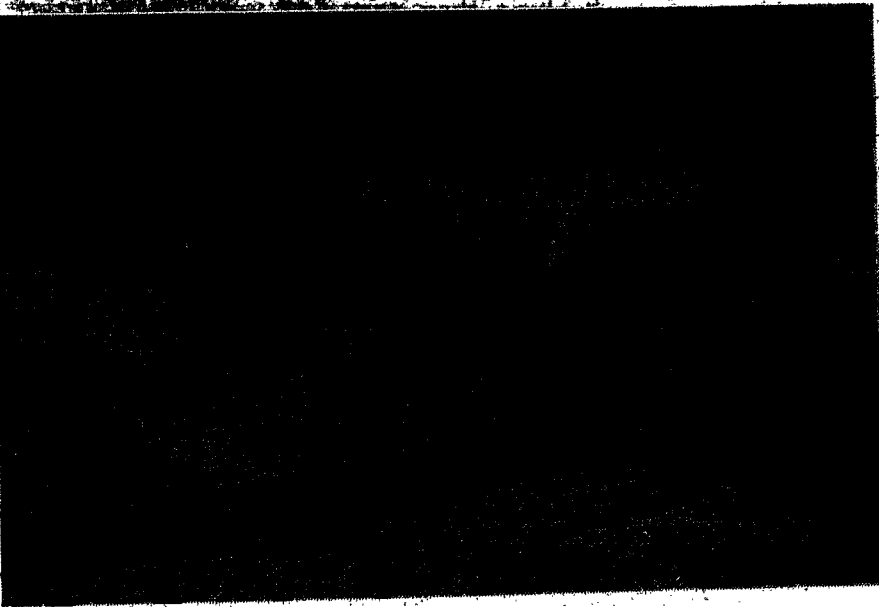

Winters also proposes change in the department of higher education, similar to what he has proposed, however Gandy emphasizes she has provided the momentum in both educational and industrial progress in the state.

Gandy gathered with residents from the county at the Bay St. Louis City Hall on approximately two hours, making for approximately 100 people.

Clerk's Race

What are the responsibilities of a Chancery Clerk as you see them?

Rutherford: "A Chancery Clerk maintains the records of Chancery courts, which deal with cases in domestic matters, land matters, lunacies, drug abuse commitments."

"The clerk is also the clerk to the county supervisors, keeping the minutes up to date, handling correspondence. He receives all the money that comes to the county except for the county school system and the county hospital. The clerk is county auditor, treasurer and recorder."

Necaise: "The Chancery Clerk is clerk to the supervisors. He keeps up with all land transactions, all record and legal documents, maintains Youth Court and Chancery Court records. He invests county funds to bring back the highest returns, and must be accessible to his constituents."

If you win, what are your short term objectives?

Rutherford: "Try to improve services daily by getting more federal monies to improve facilities for the clerk's office so that a better job can be performed. Be efficient."

Necaise: "Study money saving methods relative to administrative costs. Study recording methods and determine if there are more efficient ways to serve people. Examine all county accounts and simplify the method for managing records and expenditures."

"Organize county records, files, etc. and develop a functional system."

What will be your long term goals?

Rutherford: "Acquire more space to place records."

"I want to get better equipment to work with. Get more money for the fire departments. I also want to change the record system to computer and microfilm some records."

Necaise: "Create a good working relationship with all other county officials to make this county a better place to live. As a young man aware of the feeling of having to leave home for employment, I will work towards providing jobs in the county so our young people will not have to leave from home."

"Help promote the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, which is responsible for industrial development."

What is your campaign plan for the second primary?

Rutherford: "Contact a lot of people who supported me in the first primary, advertise in the paper, pass out campaign cards and posters. Contact a whole heap of folks every day. I will try to get more people out to vote and exercise their constitutional right and duty."

Necaise: "My wife and I will be knocking on every door we can find, running on my qualifications and preparation for this job. I have planned newspaper and radio advertising. I believe a candidate should go out and face the people and talk over the issues."

How significant is the position of Chancery clerk compared to other county government offices?

Rutherford: "About equal in importance, if every body does his or her job the county goes forward."

Necaise: "It is one of the most important offices in local government, but all of the offices are important and we must work together to operate the county efficiently."

To which organizations do you belong?

Rutherford: "I am a member of Christ Episcopal Church, Masonic Lodge No. 429, Scottish Rite Bodies, Joppa Temple (Shriner), American Legion Post No. 138, Boy Scouts, Hancock County Blood Bank, American Red Cross, March of Dimes, Bay High Booster Club, St. Stanislaus Sideline Club, Triton Kings Club, Waveland Civic Organization, Disabled American Veterans, University of Southern Mississippi Alumni Association, Ducks Unlimited, United States Jaycees, Bay Waveland Rod and Gun Club, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Hancock County Fair Association, Friends of the Library, National Wrestling Association of America, Mississippi Wildlife Federation and the Retired Federal Employees."

"I may have missed some," he added.

Necaise: "I am a member of the High School Activities Association, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Bay St. Louis Jaycees, Masonic Lodge No. 429 and the Hancock County Farm Bureau."

What do you wish to tell the public?

Rutherford: "Re-elect me and I will continue to assist in the growth of our county with the knowledge I have gained through the years."

"I am a former Internal Revenue Service auditor and have been involved in auditing and accounting for some 35 years. I have the necessary tools to make Hancock County go forward."

Necaise: "I have had many great instructors, but this campaign has been one of the greatest learning experiences I have ever had."

"I appreciate the kindness shown to my wife and me while visiting your homes. I have conducted a campaign on my qualifications and my desire to serve you and not on my opponents shortcomings."

"I prepared very diligently for this job, give me a chance to make life better for us in Hancock County."

Home economist highlights fall fashion selections

By SHIRLEY C. ROBINSON
Extension Home Economist

BODY-CONSCIOUS STYLES

POPULAR THIS FALL Hemlines and jackets are shorter, skirts slim, waists defined and shoulders emphasized in body-conscious shaping for fall. It is a throwback to the fashion silhouette popular in the 50s and highlighted by the suit.

New textures make fabrics important. The most popular fabrics this season are naturals such as wools, cotton and silk. Suit fabrics include tweeds, cords and corduroys. Twills, gabardine and herringbone replace plain-weave poplin. Crepe is brushed for softness.

Embossed nylon knits have the texture of velvet and smooth leather. Loopy knits give a combined surface of velvet and panne. New ways with velvet include twill stripes, wave patterning or flowers inside diamond shapes.

Chenille in wool, rayon and cotton or wool and polyester is popular, as is cotton terry toweling. Terry and chenille are also combined to incorporate the surface interest of both.

Shaggy terry, a new look between terry and chenille, is featured in polyester and blends of polyester with other man-made fabrics or with wool. Poodle cloth and chinchilla cloth are novel materials.

Shine and iridescence are everywhere in knits and wovens. Iridescence is achieved by shearing (embossing 125-500 lines per inch on fabric surfaces to give a silk-like luster).

Two different colors of yarn or a combination of matte and shiny yarns may be used. Vibrant colors appear alone or include black accents. Bright, multi-colored flecks appear on dark backgrounds, especially black and plum. With the emphasis on shine, tweedy flecks and texture, prints are used sparingly.

A return to the ensemble or costume of the 50s boasts slim and simple suits, dresses with jackets and two-piece dresses and jumpers.

Collars are small, round or V-necked. In suiting, many jackets are collarless. Shoulder interest includes padding, shirring, flanges, puffs, and buttons. Nipped-in waistlines are accented with sashes, ties and belts.

The jackets highlights fall coordinates, whether it completes a suit or provides mix and match possibilities. Jackets are short and boxy, fitted or casually draped with one-button center-closure or side-closure.

Another look is the wrapped jacket. Accent include piping, some in leather and belts which cinch the jacket into shape.

Skirts are slim, straight or pleated; some have decorated side buttons, some have slits. Dresses are popular and come in wide range of polyester knits, crepes and jerseys.

Blouses, the perfect complement to the tailored suit, are soft and feminine. They are often high-necked in shimmering fabrics.

Pants are ankle-hugging and straight. The mid-calf length is novel. Pants are featured in corduroy, twill, sailcloth and silk-shantung, plus a new nylon warpknit resembling smooth leather. Skinny jeans surface with stretch and shine.

The T-line and shoulder interest earmark sweaters. Other styles include narrowed waists, cropped boxy looks, wrap-around and ribbing. Easy care acrylics are plentiful, as are blends of acrylic with natural fabrics such as wool and alpaca.

Neutral tones moved toward warm golds and currys. Black and plum are favorites. Freshest are the bright colors—coral, magenta, hot pink, and in the deep tones—navy, wine, forest green. Muted brights, mallard blue and teal round out the palette.

The seasons defined fashion appeals through soft, feminine suit dressing which combines natural fabrics with synthetics for warmth and shine. For a smart, practical wardrobe, consider care instructions and fabric content of fashions as well as mix and match approaches which can stretch your clothing dollar.

WHAT DOES THE UNITED WAY OF HANCOCK COUNTY DO?

It affords every individual and company an opportunity for wise, effective and easy giving to help support many of the worthwhile service and charitable organizations operating in Hancock County, which need and deserve our voluntary contributions. Funds received are budgeted and paid out to the participating agencies under the direction and control of the Board of Directors.

WHY AREN'T ALL FUND RAISING ORGANIZATIONS IN THE UNITED WAY?

United Way affiliation is voluntary. Some organizations are bound by policies of their national headquarters, which do not permit them to participate in local federated campaigns. There are also organizations which do not meet the strict requirements of sound management. The United Way maintains an open door policy to all organizations which qualify. One of the basic requirements is that they provide a needed service to the people of Hancock County.

HOW MUCH OF MY CONTRIBUTION GOES TO THE EXPENSES OF THE DRIVE AND OPERATING EXPENSES.

The United Way of Hancock County campaign and operating expense runs approximately 7%. Smaller drives sometime average as high as 30% for campaign costs and overhead.

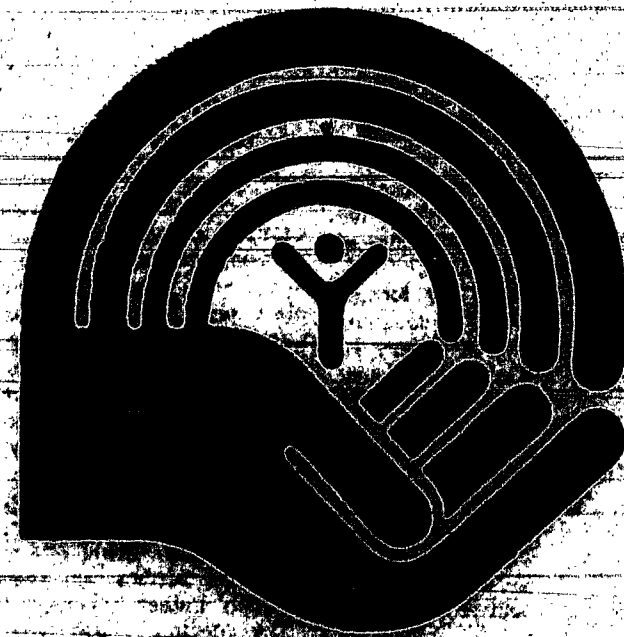

WHAT IS THE UNITED WAY OF HANCOCK COUNTY?

The United Way is a fund raising, service, information, communication and educational organization which belongs to the people of Hancock County. It is your instrument of local charity. It represents the fair share contributions of our people, given in a single campaign to the organizations included in the Fund. Your United Way of Hancock County and its agencies work on a day-to-day basis to assist our people with their human needs.

WHO OPERATES THE UNITED WAY?

A Board of Directors, all volunteers, selected by the contributors. The United Way of Hancock County is controlled and operated by its own people.

United Way meetings are held at 4:00 P.M. on the second Tuesday of each month. All of our citizens are invited.

BOOK REVIEW

A $25,000 First Western Novel Competition, open to all U.S. residents who have not previously published a novel, will be sponsored by Bantam Books and 20th Century-Fox studio.

The goal of the "$25,000 Bantam Books-Twentieth Century-Fox First Western Novel Competition," which was announced today (2) by Marc Jaffe, president and editor-in-chief of Bantam Books, and Richard Berger, vice-president, production, 20th Century-Fox, is to encourage the writing of the kind of quality Western fiction that has entertained readers and moviegoers for decades.

The winning novel will be published by Bantam in the Fall, 1980, and film rights will be purchased by Fox. The novelist will receive $25,000, of which $5,000 is an outright prize; $10,000 is the publisher's non-returnable advance against royalties; and $10,000 is the film studio's purchase price for the motion picture rights.

In addition, if a film is produced from the novel, the author will receive an additional $20,000 bonus plus a profit participation in the film's earnings.

"We are looking for a novel in the tradition of fast-moving, authentic Western frontier entertainments by such popular masters of the genre as Zane Grey, Ernest Haycox, Luke Short and Louis L'Amour," said Irwyn Applebaum, Bantam's Western editor, who is coordinating the contest on behalf of the publisher.

Entries will be accepted for the competition from September 1, 1979, through March 31, 1980.

The winning manuscript, which must be between 50,000 and 75,000 words in length, will be chosen by an independent panel of judges selected by Bantam and 20th Century-Fox.

The winner will be announced next June.

A complete set of rules and eligibility requirements for entering the contest can be obtained by writing to: Bantam Books-20th Century-Fox, First Western Novel Competition, P.O. Box 338, Boulder, Colorado 80306.

The Ultimate Fruit Pie

With fresh fruits at their peak of perfection, homemade straight-from-the-oven pies will also be at their very best. To produce the ultimate fresh fruit pie, prepare the pastry, then mix together corn starch, sugar and spices and toss with fruit; then bake. The corn starch will thicken the fruit juices as the pie bakes, giving an attractive translucent filling that won't mask the fresh fruit flavor. Fresh Blueberry Pie is just one of eight recipes on the Ultimate Fresh Fruit Pie recipe sampler. For a free copy write to: Argos-Kingsford's corn starch, Dept. PS-D, Box 307, Coventry, CT 06230.

FRESH BLUEBERRY PIE

1 cup sugar
2 1/2 tablespoons corn starch
4 cups fresh blueberries

1 tablespoon corn oil margarine
1 recipe double crust pastry for 9-inch pie

In large bowl stir together sugar and corn starch. Add berries; toss. Turn into pastry-lined pie plate. Dot with margarine. Cover pie with pastry; seal and flute edge. Cut several slits in top crust to permit steam to escape. Bake in 425°F oven 35 to 45 minutes or until crust is browned. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

Successful man runs his business, rather than letting business run him

"There goes OLD TIGHT WAD," said one WPA worker to another in 1935, as a car passed them on the road where they were working.

How did this man get this title? Back during the 20's and early 30's there were many men working at a big lumber camp. One among their number had made an agreement with his wife that they would save one third of all the money earned.

With the generally low wages being paid, they had to live most economically and pass up many of the so-called pleasures in which most of the others indulged. That's how he got the title, "Old Tight Wad."

About 1933, "Old Tight Wad," as he was called, took part of the money he had saved and bought a good piece of land. Due to bad business conditions, the logging operation was closed down for some time at the worst of the depression, and many men were thrown completely out of work, resulting in no income, as there was no Unemployment Insurance back then.

Many of the men on the logging job were without work and without money because most of them had spent what they made as they went along.

On this job, where the man called Old Tight Wad worked, were men making more money than he was making. When the job shut down, the man called "Old Tight Wad" spent some more of the money he had saved up to buy materials to build a home on his land.

He needed help in the building of this house, so he let it be known around the camp that he would need help. Men who had been making regularly much more than he had made, came to him and offered to work for $1 a day to help build his house.

Later on, a number of these higher paid men on the old logging job were on WPA, while the man they called "Old Tight Wad" had a low cost automobile on which he owed no money and which he drove from his place, back and forth to a part time job.

As he would pass the WPA workers, they would still say, "There goes Old Tight Wad." But this term was now used with admiration and respect.

Echoes

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taconi returned Saturday from a three week vacation in Ouray, Colo. While there they were guests of his cousins Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Tankersley and family.

Mrs. Shirley Turcotte has as a guest her aunt Mrs. Lawrence Lynch of Metairie, La.

The only part of the money you earn that is really yours is the part you save. What good does it do a man to earn $100 a week or $200 a week if he spends it all? He is in the same fix as the man who earns $20 a week and spends it all. One is about as well off as the other.

Sometime back a young man I knew lost his job. He had been on this job close to ten years and had earned approximately $120 per week during that time, or better than $6,000 per year. Within 30 days after he lost his job, he was trying to borrow money. He had gone to his brother to borrow money. Now here is the interesting part of this story.

The brother that he wanted to borrow from had been earning from $40 to $50 per week over about the same period that the other man had been earning $120 per week, yet the man making the low income had saved up a substantial amount of money.

It is not what a man earns that counts. What does count is what he saves. The man who makes $40 per week and saves $5 per week out of it is much better off than the man who makes $100 per week and saves nothing.

Young men are starting fortunes today just like they have always been started, by saving part of the money that is earned. Every big fortune, every medium sized fortune, every small fortune, every business of every kind has been started by someone who saved at least a little bit of money to get started on.

Every business requires some capital and the only way that most of us can get that capital is to save it.

Elbert Hubbard said that there is one sure way that you can tell if a boy will make a success in life. If he spends less than he makes, he stands a good chance of success, but if he spends all or more than he makes he is doomed to failure.

If a child does not learn to be thrifty-how to handle money—nothing else he ever learns will be of much value to him.

One of the greatest things that a parent can do for a child is to teach him thrift—how to handle money. Unless he is thrifty, none of the other virtues can help him very much.

Economy and wise savings are the parents of integrity, the givers of liberty and of ease; and the sisters of temperance, of cheerfulness and health.

Careless spending or prodigality is a cruel demon that gradually involves her followers in dependence and debt, unhappiness and misery.

Men talk of beauty, wit, sports, entertainment, travel; but after a man begins to age, not one of these things that interest youth is to be compared with thrift and good management, which are seen at every meal and felt every hour.

Without economy or thrift none can be well off, and with it few will be poor.

Plutarch said, "Nothing is cheap which is not needed, for what a person does not need is high at any price."

The habit of saving is itself an education; it fosters every virtue, teaches self-denial; cultivates the sense of order, trains-to-forethought-and so broadens the mind.

In times of prosperity many people seem to think that there will always be good times, but good times are always followed by bad times or recession, just as winter always follows summer.

The person who spends all he makes in good times will suffer most when bad times come as he will have no reserve on which to draw.

Benjamin Franklin said, "The way to wealth is as plain as the way to town. — It depends chiefly on two words: industry and frugality; that is, waste neither time nor money, but make the best use of both. Without industry and saving, nothing will do well. — With the, everything will do well."

Frugality and saving do not mean to spend nothing — to be stingy, but to spend to the best advantage, to make every minute and every penny count.

Buy only things that will be worth something to you on a permanent basis, such as a home, reasonably priced, and worth what it is priced at. Frugality and saving mean buying the things you need, but not buying things you don't need or things you will be as well without.

Frugality and saving mean keeping part of what you earn. Part of what you earn should belong to you, so keep it. Set aside each payday a part of what you earn, and let this part that you save be the first money that you set aside from your pay envelope.

"He that gathereth in summer," says the proverb, "is a wise son; but he that sleepeth in the harvest is a son that causeth shame."

Another proverb says: "Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways and be wise; which having no guide, overseer, or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer, and gathereth her food in the harvest. — How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard? When wilt thou arise out of thy sleep?"

The spring and summer of life are the productive ages when man is most active physically and mentally. The harvest of life comes at the end of these productive years. The winter of life is old age.

We are taught all through the Bible to be thrifty, to store up in summer the things we will need for the winter; to accumulate in our productive years or harvest years for the time of need when old age comes.

Last time is never found again; wasted money is gone forever. Many a man who envies his most fortunate rivals won't do the work which success involves.

What is a successful man? A successful man, in my opinion, is one who manages his affairs well, who keeps out of useless debt and who accumulates gradually over the years property and other desirable things.
